

Master of Information and Data Science (MIDS)

Part-time online degree preparing experienced professionals to solve real-world problems.

The multidisciplinary MIDS program draws upon computer science, social sciences, statistics, management, and law. The core curriculum focuses on the following key skills: Research design, data cleansing, data engineering, data mining and exploring, data visualization, information ethics and privacy, statistical analysis, machine learning.

For more information or to recruit data science talent, email careerservices@ischool.berkeley.edu.

Select Job Titles

2019 Class Profile

7.7 years of average work experience

73% male 27% female

Median Salary

UNITED STATES	BAY AREA	INTERNATIONAL
$126,000	$150,000	$74,000

Select Employers

Outcomes

- 80% of students report having increased marketability and career opportunities
- 73% of students report being a stronger candidate when competing for jobs
- 93% of students report gaining valuable knowledge and skills from MIDS